

Before (Truth)

Screen shot # 1: GSUSA website posted the profile description of Dana Agamalian; it contained information about her affiliation with Planned Parenthood (whoops). The new profile description of Dana was changed by GSUSA the very next day (please see screen shot #2).

The screenshot shows a web browser window displaying the GSUSA website for the 2011 National Council Session / 52nd Convention. The page features a green background with a repeating pattern of the Girl Scouts logo. At the top, there is a banner with the text "RENEWING THE PROMISE: Girl Scouts in a New Century" and "2011 National Council Session / 52nd Convention" in Houston, TX, from November 8-13. A digital clock shows 22 Days, 22 Hrs, 55 Min, and 47 Sec. Below the banner is a navigation menu with links for Home, Pre-Convention, Convention at a Glance, Location & Venue, Sponsors/Exhibitors, and 100th Anniversary. The main content area is titled "REGISTER NOW! > Inspiration at every session". On the left, there is a sidebar with a "Convention at a Glance" section containing links for: About us, Celebrations, Conversations of Consequence, Girl Scout Leadership Institute, Girl Scouts Forever Green, a URL (http://girlscouts.org/convention/whats), Hall of Exhibits, History Conference, and National Council Session. On the right, there is a profile for Dana Agamalian, identified as the mother of Girl Scout Brownie, Alexa. The profile includes a photo of Dana and a bio that states she is the founder of the Orange County Friends of St. Jude Children's Research Hospital and the Family Health Circle at U.C. Irvine Medical Center. It also mentions her affiliation with the Girl Scouts of Orange County council, Planned Parenthood, SOS Children's Villages, Court Appointed Special Advocates (CASA), and the Manners Elementary School Foundation. The word "Planned Parenthood" is highlighted in yellow in the original image.
